The Threatened Indian Outbreak.

OMAHA Neb. Feb 12—A report just received from Fort Fetterman states that the Indians attacked a wood party near there this morning. Twenty-five men have been sent to their relief. Gen Smith at Fort Laramie telegraphs that he has just received information that arms and ammunition are en route to the Agency, furnished by the Interior Department. Capt. Egan was ordered out to intercept the train and bring the arms and ammunition to the post. It is estimated that there are about 5,000 warriors—Sioux, Cheyennes and Arapahoes—who could be in the field on call. If the whole of them are on the war path which the nature of their attacks along the line from Fort Fetterman to Republican river would indicate to oppose them there are but three companies of cavalry and nine of infantry.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Senator Mitchipple Narrates a Part of His Experience in "the Wide, Wide World."

WASHINGTON, Feb 12—In the Senate to-day Mitchell called up the resolution introduced by him on the [illegible] of December instructing the Committee on Indian Affairs to inquire into the expediency of ascertaining the damages incurred by citizens of Oregon in consequence of Indian depredations, and addressed the Senate in favor of its passage. He said that after a long residence in the West he felt justified in saying that the cry of [illegible] having been wronged by Government or it [illegible] was a perversion of fact. The maxim that the king can do no wrong seemed to have been applied [illegible] Indians and the utterance of such sentiments was unjust to the settlers of the West. He denied that the people of Oregon had wronged the Modocs in any manner, and quoted from the report of the Indian Commissioners in regard to the Modoc troubles. He said that either the Commissioners were guilty of gross perversion of facts or ignorant of the subject whereof they wrote. In charity he would attribute their blunder to the latter cause. He reviewed the Modoc troubles, and argued that the insolent defiance of Capt Jack and his band could not be tolerated. He said the people of Oregon protested against the peace policy of the Government deeming it not a proper one in the management of Indians.

The resolution was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

OREGON AS SEEN BY A SOJOURNER

PORTLAND, Feb 13 1874

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

While merely a sojourner in your city, I have read with pleasure your sprightly and interesting paper, which is so bold and fearless in exposing all the crimes and corruptions of both political parties and of individuals in whom the public are interested. I have been pleased to note the genuine moral tone of the reading matter, a quality which I have not noticed in other papers printed in Oregon (save the religious) and I must compliment the people of Oregon upon their good taste in supporting such a paper as the OREGONIAN which cannot but do a great deal of good in hastening that revolution in politics which we [illegible] so great need of.

You have one of the most fertile valleys and healthful climates in the world and your State will be in a few years the garden of the Union as you have an illustrious class of people and all you want now is capital to make this as prosperous a State as any within the United States.

In looking around your city I have noticed several very interesting features with which we are not familiar in the Western States. Your lumber trade is one with which we are [illegible] and I have noticed it very particu[illegible] Your fish trade is quite a source of [illegible] to your State [illegible] of which you may [illegible] justly proud.

I was not a little surprised to find in your [illegible] much of culture and refinement and [illegible] hall [illegible] hesitate in letting my friends on the Atlantic side know about your resources [illegible] prospects of Oregon.

Yours truly

CALIFORNIA

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO Feb 13—The time made by the steamer Japan from Hong Kong and Yokohama was beaten by the [illegible] twelve hours.

Much interest is felt in sporting circles in the wrestling match to come off at Platt's Hall to-morrow night. Pool selling is quite lively, the bets averaging two to one in favor of McLaughlin of New York against Whalen of this city.

The British ship Queen [illegible] which came back here in distress a few nights since, will go into the dry dock to-day for repairs.

James Smith was robbed of $980 in a house on Dupont street last night and both the inmates arrested.

Greenbacks unchanged.

Another heavy rain to-day.

SAN FRANCISCO Feb 13—Sales by the San Francisco Stock Board for the week ending the 11th were over $4,000,000.

J J Brannan, who pleaded guilty to having forged several checks on the Bank of California was sentenced to-day to the State prison for two years.

The Board of Supervisors held a special meeting to-night to consider the bill for reincorporating the city. After a brief discussion of some of the provisions of the bill the Board adopted a resolution requesting the delegation at Sacramento to use their best endeavors to procure the passage of the bill. On the subject of the proposed issuance of bonds and the appropriation of $250,000 for street work, several members spoke in favor of the stone-block pavement, and the levying of a direct tax to pay for the same. McMenzies and Mayor Otis opposed this proposition. The latter said that the streets of the city are in a very bad condition and cannot be improved without the outlay of large sums of money. He thought the city should be authorized to issue bonds for that purpose alone to the extent of $500,000, running twenty or thirty years, so that the people would not feel the burden as they would that of a direct tax. He hoped the Board and delegation would be careful to procure the best legislation on the subject possible. The proposed act as printed will be sent to Sacramento but no committee of the Board was appointed to confer with the delegation.

The examination of the Chronicle Sun libel case is not concluded. It will be resumed to-morrow. Details of proof are still sufficiently disgusting to meet all the requirements of the disgraceful affair.

SAN FRANCISCO Feb. 13—Chas. Williams, a farmer who says he signed articles, while drunk to serve as a seaman on the ship Semi[illegible] chopped three of his fingers off for the purpose of disabling himself. Col Stevenson Shipping Commissioner, denies that Williams was drunk. He says he came to his office several times and was anxious to go to sea. The officers of the ship sent the man ashore for surgical treatment.

Pool selling on the wrestling match to come off to-morrow night is brisk the odds still in favor of McLaughlin against Whalen. The latter resigned from the police force to prepare for this match.

It is still raining.

SACRAMENTO Feb 13—About a month ago Geo E Stough obtained $80 from Dan Consadine a saloon keeper of this city on what afterwards proved to be a forged note for $200 purporting to be signed by Black & Morrison of Lincoln. A warrant was issued for his arrest on the 12th of January. Two weeks ago a notice appeared in a Stockton paper announcing Stough's death near that city. But it appears that he was not dead and was arrested yesterday near Galt and brought here on the above charge and another of obtaining goods by false pretenses.

Weather cold and showery.

SHASTA, Feb 13—Shorty Hayes Jacob Clark and Charles Thompson having been convicted of stage robbery were this evening sentenced to a term of 21 years each in the Penitentiary.

EMIGRANT GAP, Feb 13—It is snowing heavily and doing considerable damage to the telegraph line. Wind is stiff southwest and drifting so as to endanger if not stop, trains. Snow plows are out all the time trying to keep the road open. There is more snow on the ground now than there has been for three years past.

Barnard nominated Dewdney as member and McQuarrie nominated D Chisholm. The show of hands being in favor of Dewdney, a poll was demanded for Chisholm. Johnston with writs and ballot boxes for Kootenai and way places, left Hope yesterday morning. There is considerable excitement here about rumored disturbances in Victoria. The majority condemn the Government's actions.

Weather cold and cloudy.

LACONNER Feb 13—Dispatches from Barkerville, B C to-day say Barnard's express arrived there Wednesday evening bringing a very large letter and paper mail. Mr Johnson the driver reports the roads very heavy in Lache valley there being very little travel in that vicinity.

Mr J Spencer Thompson arrived in town last night and was warmly received by his constituents. Flags were flying on all the principal places in town and a salute was fired in honor of his arrival.

There is a rumor current here that Mr Jos Clearhue will oppose Mr Thompson for the representative of Cariboo district in the House of Commons.

Lane & Kurts have at last got their mine dry and expect to commence work in ten days. Everything looks favorable.

Considerable disaffection prevails here on account of no notice having been taken of the grand jury's recommendation to remove the Government offices from Richfield to Barkerville.

The writs from Ottawa arrived here per last mail. Nominations will take place on the 21st of the present month and the election on the 2[illegible] of March.

THE CALIFORNIA BRIBERY INVESTIGATION

[illegible]

(Sacramento Special to S F Call)

SACRAMENTO Feb 9 1874—The one topic of conversation is the bribery investigation based on Boruck's published charges that money had been offered to certain members of the Legislature to vote for Booth. Under ordinary circumstances the [illegible] would have been born to blush unseen, owing to the fact that no one was ever known to invade the sacred precincts of the columns of that highly moral journal the Cal [illegible] Times but a number of copies of the [illegible] containing the charge were sent out with the article carefully marked and it was [illegible] by the Exam[illegible] It was from this [illegible] that publicity was given to the allegation. The insinuation that Mr Booth or any of those prominently connected with the Senatorial contest used or attempted to use improper means to secure the election of our Senator received no consideration in the minds of any except those whose extreme partisanship and violent antagonism had biased their judgment. Yet notwithstanding the source whence the accusation came it was thought better to sift the matter to the bottom, and find out what truth there might be in the story of the three black crows. So the committee of investigation was organized. Its proceedings thus far have been fully telegraphed to you. Boruck virtually occupied the position of complaining witness and his counsel, N Greene Curtis Esq was especially earnest in impressing on the committee that his position was merely that of counsel for Mr Borock and that he proposed to go no further than to justify his client and exonerate him from any charge of exaggeration or misstatement. The Independent members of the committee however took no such limited view of the question and Norton expressed their sentiments when he said the investigation should take the widest range and be conducted with the utmost exactness to trace any and all charges and insinuations of bribery or corruption to their source.

ASSEMBLYMAN CARTER,

Of Yuba was the witness, upon whose statement hinged the justification or disproval of the charge made by Borock which by the by was not brought before the committee in its published form but was verbally stated by the writer. His statement tallied in substance with Borock's but when analyzed it loses something of its strength. He acknowledged to but a slight acquaintance with Brown who he says, made the proffer of money and that this acquaintance was founded on a trading job by which he was to give his vote for Brown in consideration of Brown using his influence to secure votes for a friend of his (Carter's) who aspired to some other subordinate place in the Legislature. This was a bargain and Mr Carter goes on to say that he afterwards told Brown he would not hold himself to his promise because he had discovered that Brown's influence was a fiction. Yet he voted for Brown for Enrolling Clerk which he had an undoubted right to do. It was subsequent to this that he placed himself in communication with Brown at the latter's request. Then he says he was told that he could have $2,000 in gold notes if he would vote for Booth—not that day, but the next. He declined the offer. He was not particularly excited or indignant because he had been educated by the newspapers to believe such propositions of every day occurrence. It was Brown who exhibited signs of deep emotion. Then the affectionate parting between the interesting pair. He followed me out to the head of the stairs says Mr Carter and put out his hand and said, This is on honor Mr Carter don't say anything about it. And Mr Carter strong in his purity, promised the man who had attempted to bribe him not to mention the matter—on honor. After which Mr Carter returned to his seat in the joint assemblage, which had before it the question of electing some person to the high and honorable position of United States Senator and kept his promise to Brown. And Mr Carter even though he was willing to connive at the concealment of an attempted crime was a man of his word (to Brown) until evening when he told the story to Senator Spencer. Then Mr Carter again became silent as the close mouthed turtle. He made no effort to defeat the candidate against whom he was voting by exposing this bold attempt at bribery but next day saw him elected as the representative of the great State of California. He was still true to Brown. The people honor justice the State were nothing. Brown was his watchword. Brown first last and all the time. Brown forever. Yet even [illegible] tired of his love and so Carter of his Brown. The secret again became too great for his bosom, he could not like King Midas whisper it to the reeds for the mud was too deep in Sacramento. [illegible] could he sing it to the birds of the forest, for his musical education had been neglected but he did unbosom himself to—Borock! As when he told Carter so now he exacted the pledge of secrecy as to Brown. Nor has he since made any effort to oust from his position this pleasant Mister Brown, but allows him to retain the place of Enrolling Clerk without a word of remonstrance.

Mr Richard Brown, accused by Assemblyman Carter, is Enrolling Clerk of the Assembly. When the vote was taken for the office Loofbourrow, the clerk declared Tod Robinson elected. Several members and Brown say the tally was not rightly kept and next day another vote was taken, resulting in Brown's election. He has been known as a [illegible] politician and has trained in the Democratic ranks. He was Deputy Sheriff under [illegible] White. Queer stories are told of his method of operating. It is said that in order to secure his clerkship he compromised with a prominent aspirant promising half the pay until authorized to appoint a deputy, who should be this former competitor and it is further said that the bargain was not kept. [illegible] the statement that his salary [illegible] the whole [illegible] has been sold in advance is but a rumor and must not be swallowed whole. Brown's position is not enviable. The story of Carter is direct and circumstantial and credited by all. But the proof thus far is so complete on the [illegible] of [illegible] that the [illegible] party that supported the offer to have been made the only [illegible] conclusion is that he might have thought to secure a vote for two thousand dollars in the hope that he might [illegible] to some [illegible] both and [illegible] fingers in this making [illegible] or less in amount.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS IN TRANSIT.—The following bill has been introduced in the House of Representatives and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS

SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb 13—The [illegible] bounty [illegible] It provides that all who enlisted in the army under the Proclamation of May 3d and previous to August 1861, be paid a bounty of one hundred dollars provided the same has not been directly paid.

The morning hour having expired the Senate resumed the consideration of the Bankrupt bill the pending amendment being that of Sherman to [illegible] ninety instead of forty days as the time when persons mentioned in the thirty ninth section of this bill should be deemed bankrupt. The amendment was rejected—yeas 16 noes 39.

Allison offered an amendment to the thirty ninth section, so as to require one third of the number of creditors representing at least one half of the debts to force a person into bankruptcy instead of one-fourth the number and one third the amount. Rejected.

Logan offered an amendment which was also rejected, and after one or two verbal amendments, the 39th section as reported by the Judiciary Committee was agreed to with the exception of filling the blank as to the time when the provisions of the section should apply to all cases of involuntary bankruptcy, which was left to be filled hereafter. The section agreed to to extend the time for forcing suspended persons into bankruptcy from fourteen to sixty days, reduces fees of bankruptcy cases one half and empowers Justices of the Supreme Court to consolidate the duties of Register, Assignee, Marshal, and Clerk and to reduce the cost of charges.

Edmunds offered an amendment conferring jurisdiction in bankruptcy cases on any Circuit or District Court of the United States. Agreed to as was also an amendment dispensing with personal service [illegible] in all cases of claims not exceeding fifty dollars and permitting in such cases notice to be given by publication.

Edmunds offered an additional section, providing the duty of the Marshal of each district to transmit to the Clerk of the District Court in July of each year a tabular statement of all bankrupt cases in which he has been called to act, with full particulars and details of amounts realized, amounts of [illegible] and fees, the kind and number of cases, final disposition of cases [illegible] and making it the duty of the Clerks of District Courts to forward these statements to the Attorney General with a list of cases pending and [illegible] of dividends declared therein [illegible] and [illegible] penalties for neglect of the duties by Clerks and Marshals. The section was adopted.

Harlan offered an amendment abolishing the office of Register in Bankruptcy and providing for the performance of the duties of Register by District Courts, and giving them power when necessary or advisable to appoint special commissioners to perform any duties now performed by Registers with such compensation only as may be allowed by the court.

The Chair announced that Morrill of Maine, appointed on the District of Columbia Investigation Committee in place of Conkling excused was also excused from serving on the ground that his time is already so occupied with committee work as to make it impossible for him to serve.

Sherman entered a motion to reconsider the vote by which the House resolution for a Joint Committee of Investigation was concurred in, saying he thought it would answer every purpose to have the House Committee of Five conduct the investigation.

The bill to pay Joseph J Petric of Illinois $5,000 in recognition of his heroic and successful efforts in rescuing from starvation and impending death a train of emigrants who were snowed in between the Sierra Nevada and Trinity Mountains in November and December 1849 and in payment of his expenses and losses gave rise to considerable discussion in Committee of the Whole but was finally agreed to. The Committee rose and the House adjourned. To-morrow's session will be for debate only.

PHILADELPHIA'S PET THE CENTENNIAL PROJECT

[illegible] FOR THE [illegible] BUILDINGS

Just now more than at any other time in the past, the movement is placed in a position to rapidly develop. Recognizing the need of immediate action that the buildings may not be unfinished at the day of its opening the Board of Finance have issued printed notices (which will at once find a place in the advertising columns of leading journals) calling the attention of contractors, joiners, lumbermen and builders and desiring them to submit contracts for the erection of the main structure which as heretofore stated will cover the immense area of thirty acres of ground. The card specifies that these contracts must be handed in before February 21.

An earnest effort will be made to render the Eastern Department of the exposition, which in the Vienna project was so interesting but yet so incomplete, very comprehensive and very full. In the Austrian affair China took no official stand whatever. All Chinese productions upon exhibition there were brought over by a few representatives and it is rumored correctly, by native Englishmen. The rich islands of the Pacific, China, Japan and indeed all the little provinces and territories under the dominion of the Dutch will be thoroughly ransacked and all their quaint and curious industries will find a place in the beautiful American pavilion. Such a complete and perfect exhibit of the wealth and richness of the Indies will do much toward drifting their commerce in the direction of America. San Francisco being fully as near and under conditions of more ready access than almost any European port. It is believed that cultured preparation [illegible] the part of Eastern governments will invariably include them toward this project and an effort will be made in this direction at once. It is confidently asserted that by securing a steady stream of commerce from the East we [illegible] that [illegible] the West while [illegible] believed that the American Centennial Exposition is one of the best measures by which this [illegible] can be brought about. The plans for are now completed and along with interior and perspective views were submitted [illegible] to the official representative in Washington. They are at present being photographed and will of course soon be made familiarly [illegible] in every section of the country. There is one element which enters into the plans and renders them of intimate [illegible] those with which the world has [illegible] The [illegible] aside from being peculiarly original and [illegible] apart from their almost extra[illegible] and strength have been worked out with the view of subsequently [illegible]

AN UNNECESSARY EXPENSE

We have mentioned several times heretofore the unnecessary expense connected with the collection of taxes by the means at present in vogue The subject is one that ought to be kept before the people till some action is taken for remedying the evil Three or four different taxes are levied and almost as many different sets of assessors and collectors are employed to gather them In First, we have a general poll or capitation tax, which is collectable by the county assessor Then come the State and county taxes the former uniform being levied by a general law of the State and the amount of the latter dependent upon the current expenses of the county These are both collected by the Sheriff as tax collector Then we have a road poll tax and road tax on property which also are fixed and uniform And here is an absurdity and a leak One would say at first blush there ought to be no trouble or expense about the collection of this tax All that is necessary is that it be added to the other rates before the roll is placed in the hands of the Sheriff and that he collect it just as he does other taxes Then it could be distributed among the road districts in proportion to their taxable property, just as the funds arising from the general school tax are distributed among the school districts But no there must be as many different tax collectors as there are road districts and there are far too many of these So the County Clerk certifies a complete copy of the assessment roll so far as relates to each district, to the Supervisor thereof who, after proceeding to extend the computation of the amount of taxes due from each individual, goes out on his collecting tour, drawing therefor his regular per diem In rural districts, where many persons work out their road taxes instead of paying in money, this mode of collecting may be convenient, but there should be a different rule for districts embracing cities where road tax, or a large majority of it, is invariably collected in cash And both for city and country the copying of the entire assessment roll, descriptions of property and all by the clerk, is a useless expense and ought to be abolished All that the supervisor needs in any case to enable him to collect the taxes or have work done on the roads in lieu thereof is a statement of the amount of tax due from each man He is not, or should not be, concerned to know the nature and description of the property on account of which the tax is payable

And where is the necessity of separate assessors for a county and the incorporated cities or towns within its limits? The assessment roll for the town or city could be taken with less than a fourth of the expense of the present double assessment plan from the county assessor's rolls, and would be just as correct, one year with another, as if made by an assessor acting specially for the town or city

There is certainly room for improvement in economy of collecting taxes, and the Legislature, at its next session, should be urged to take the subject in hand and provide for the performance of this service by less wasteful methods unless—and we suppose this reservation is always understood—unless those servants of the people who compose that body shall find their time and talents so preoccupied with the plots and counterplots of party politics as to render it impracticable to attend to such trifling matters as the saving of a few hundred dollars here and few thousand there, to the taxpayers of the State.

MORE ABOUT "GOOD BEHAVIOR"

For some days past the Bulletin has been discoursing on the subject of the impropriety of Judges, especially those of the higher courts, being active managers of or participants in, party politics The object of these discourses of the bribers organ is to create public sentiment against the U S Judge because he refuses to become an accomplice of the ring and assist them in their attempt to subvert the laws of the country to the accomplishment of their partisan schemes He declines to be a partisan in their interests, and therefore he is denounced as a partisan leader against them, when the truth is that, so far as we have any knowledge in the premises, (and we claim to be somewhat advised generally as to the movements against the ring) the judge against whom the Bulletin's charges are directed has never counseled or advised in any of the political steps that have so troubled the ring nor been consulted in regard to them We have supposed all along that his sympathies—it is assumed that a judge may have natural sympathies—were with the people and therefore in opposition to the ring but for this opinion we have had no other ground than that he has always conducted himself like an honest and upright citizen and faithful officer and we have known few if any persons bearing that character to be in sympathy with the ring of bribers and corruptionists that swarm around Mr. Holladay and draw their support from the Government under the name of collectors, deputy collectors, inspectors and deputy inspectors, weighers, gaugers appraisers, watchmen and so on ad infinitum

Now there can be no doubt that the character of party leader or of active partisan in political contests, is incompatible with the high duties of a Judge. The Bulletin can never overdraw the picture of the evils of a partisan judiciary We have referred to these evils [illegible] in general terms in connection with some [illegible] concerning our State judiciary It is not to be gainsayed that at least one judge of the Supreme Court of Oregon has soiled his judicial robe in his efforts to sustain the power of the ring, of which Mr Holladay is the head and the Bulletin is the organ The evidence of this is not confined to one single act nor to two or three Nor are the instances wanting of acts of his in matters not affecting ring politics but directly connected with his judicial duties, which to say the very least would justify the severest criticism We expect to have occasion to refer to these things specifically before a great while and we hope we [illegible] the ring's judge [illegible] Mr H[illegible] day will not order the ring organ to go back on all the wholesome ideas it has advanced of late in regard to judges who prostitute their offices to personal or political ends

THE RING'S FAIL AGAIN

What a pity that all the high pressure blowing and low pressure rejoicing over the accusations of bribery made by Bo[illegible]ruck against Governor Booth should come to naught Yet so it must be The investigation has shown simply if the testimony is not false in toto that a fellow named Brown and a fellow named Carter were on terms of perfect understanding with each other in the matter of political jobs having already traded in their votes to help each other in some personal enterprises before the Legislative Assembly that these worthies were in the habit of talking confidentially and upon honor over their little schemes, and that Brown who is a Democratic ward politician one day told Carter who is a tool of the Pacific Railway Company, that he (Brown) would give him (Carter) $2000 if he would on the next day vote for Booth It does not appear that Booth ever had held any communication directly or indirectly with Brown, or so much as knew that the fellow desired his election. The report says it appears probable that Brown was pushing a little speculation of his own counting that he could probably find some way to make his experience as a ward politician available in getting into office at the hands of Gov Booth through the influence of some personal friend. At all events the effort to connect Booth, or any prominent friend of his, with the attempted bribery has signally failed

REGRETS IT

At the close of his last column of abuse of Judge Deady, in which not a single point is made that is worthy of a moment's notice, the editor of the Bulletin tries to make his readers believe he has been forced reluctantly to take the course he has pursued toward the Judge He says, "With regret we have written this" We should think, if he has any friend who has been faithful enough to tell him what an ass he has made of himself he must regret it As for Judge Deady, we should suppose he would feel rather complimented that a fellow who is prompted by malice such as Scott has exhibited throughout these attacks and who is known never to scruple at any falsehood which he can tell with impunity should not dare to make a single specific charge of misconduct though he wrote column after column of scurrilous epithets and personal abuse There is no reason to doubt that Scott "regrets," having attempted to break down the character of Judge Deady. The enterprise has been by no means a prosperous one Scott's case is evidently one in which "gangrened malignity," having failed of its purpose, is in a state of "gangrened humiliation"

THAT REMARKABLE PETRIFACTION

Readers of the OREGONIAN will remember a wonderful narrative published in the OREGONIAN of January 23d detailing with curious particularity the strange fate of a young bride who was suddenly turned into stone, like another Niobe, upon drinking a liquid contained in a geological specimen from the cabinet of her husband The story was well told and doubtless there were many upon whom it made a profound impression

In the St Paul (Minn) Press of January 29th, we find the annexed correspondence The editor of that journal prefaces the correspondence with this remark "A reader of the Press with a keen sense of the humor of the thing took occasion to write a letter of inquiry to the responsible author of the story who appeared under the fearful name of S Ghywr Jorschk to which the petrifier with the unpronounceable names replies, and the correspondence is enclosed to us for publication" Here it is

AFTON, Minn Jan 26, 1874.

Editors St Paul Press—About the 1st of this month you published a story taken from the New York Sun in regard to a wonderful petrifaction of a Mrs Haller The article had an air of truth and also a shade of improbability I wrote to see if in the first place I could get a reply and secondly to have the story better authenticated and the within enclosed is the reply with which I am satisfied

I am very respectfully your obedient servant

S GHYWR JORSCHK

It is the proud privilege of every American citizen to believe or reject the story thus circumstantially stated and tersely certified As for ourself we are disposed to believe that almost anything is possible with a man who survives the fearful disadvantages of such a name as S Ghywr Jorschk The next step in investigation will be a demand on the part of the incredulous that the individual with the perilous appellation further verify his statement by drinking a quantity of the mysterious water of death It is by such heroism that some of the most useful truths of science have been raised above the assaults of that spirit of skepticism which pursues shadows hands and tilting tables or such unique transformations as this which turned the [illegible] into [illegible] snowy alabaster and an [illegible] elegant condition Let [illegible] take a huge gulp of the Stygian fluid As the case stands it looks very much as if he was trying to get up a [illegible] in the [illegible] business

The irrepressible Pinchback claims a[illegible] ples his leisure time during recess [illegible] the Senate in banging a[illegible] the House He says that he has been [illegible] to a [illegible] and he wants the Gen[illegible] of New Orleans who has [illegible] asked that Pinch be debarred from [illegible] his claim further on the ground that he (Pinch) is also contesting a seat in the Senate Pinch demurs and lenanity challenges [illegible] opponent to show anything in the Constitution or the laws which forbids his getting two seats if he can A House Committee is [illegible] with the problem

The Washington County Granges [illegible]

THE PERIODICALS

The February number of the Sanitarian, edited by A N Bell M D and published by A S Barnes & Co at New York and Chicago has reached us This is an excellent health magazine for popular circulation being freer from the technical language of the profession than most periodicals devoted to medical science while avoiding on the other hand the [illegible] and unscientific statements with which health journals of the [illegible] reform school generally capture the vulgar This number contains a plain sensible discussion of the causes prevention and cure of scarlatina articles on the relation of sewage and drainage to health How to ventilate school houses statistical facts in regard to public health &c &c

The Catalogue and Register for 1873-4 of the College of Fine Arts of Syracuse University has been placed on our table The pamphlet contains a brief statement of the method of instruction practiced in the college course of studies etc The course is a very comprehensive one embracing freehand drawing, drawing, architectural drafting oil painting water colors and photography together with the general principles and history of esthetic culture and art criticism

The Department of State has undertaken a revision of the salaries of our Consuls and Consuls General and Senator Cameron has introduced a bill which is said to embody the views of Secretary Fish Among the salaries thus provided we note the following Consul General at London $7 000 Paris $7 000 Calcutta $5 000 Montreal $5 000 Cairo $4 000 Havana $6 000 Rio de Janeiro, $6 000 Kanagawa $5 000 Shanghai $6 000 Vienna $4 000 Berlin Frankfort Rome and Constantinople $3 000 each Consuls at Liverpool $6 000 Hongkong $4,000 Manchester and Havre $3 000 each It does not appear from the abstract furnished by the telegraph that any reduction has been made On the contrary the cynical might argue that the fact that Mr Cameron introduced the bill is prima facie evidence of an increase

Our Hillsboro correspondent says "The reason given by the OREGONIAN about the Cornelius Gael alga over Hugh Small's letter I suppose is satisfactory but he might have added that Northwest knew better than to interfere with our jurisdiction at Hillsboro

EXAMINATION FOR PROMOTION.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE FOR THE EXAMINATION OF APPLICANTS TO THE HIGH SCHOOL

The following named pupils of the A class, first grade, in the public schools of this city, having received over 70 per cent as their average standing are promoted to the High School

Maggie Fronk	78	Annie Parrish	76
H Fox	76	Edith Vedder	[illegible]
Jennie Jones	91	C B Cardwell	75
Kate McBurnie	90	Gaines Adams	72
Jessie Johnson	80	Charles Oliver	70
Minnie Costin	74

With regard to this examination it is proper to state that being the first of the kind ever held in the public schools and to many of the scholars their first written examination, no large number could be expected to reach the standard given The committee entertain little doubt that five months from now the majority of this class will be able to meet in full the required measure of proficiency It may be well to state that the name of the writer of any paper was in no case known to the committee each being designated by a number until the final summing up was made and the average was determined In this way the strictest impartiality has been maintained It is also due to the class from the north school to state that with three exceptions, they were promoted to the A grade only 5 months since and therefore stood at a comparative disadvantage in the examination The committee feel assured that great benefit will accrue to the scholars and the schools through such examinations as that of Thursday that the standard of the grammar department will be raised and a new stimulus be given to all engaged in the work For the committee

Nature's Cathartic.

No medicine is needed to keep the bowels in order as long as nature's cathartic the bile flows freely and regularly from its source in the liver and is of the right strength and quality But the great biliary gland is easily disordered and consequences of its irregularities are serious To bring it back to its natural condition when thus affected Hostetter Stomach Bitters should be taken at least twice a day until the desired effect is attained Constipation is due to a scanty supply of bile or to a lack of the stimulating element in that fluid In either case mere purgatives useless The liver must be compelled to yield the supply necessary to remove the waste matter from the system at once [illegible] twenty four hours before a radical cure of costiveness can be accomplished Hostetter's Bitters produces this effect Its action upon the stomach and liver is direct and salutary and through these organs it regulates and invigorates the whole frame

SATURDAY MORNING FEB 14 1874

THE PRAYER OF AGASSIZ

On the Isle of Penikese
Ringed about by sapphire seas
Fanned by breezes salt and cool
Stood the Master with his school
Over sails that not in vain
Wooed the west wind's steady strain,
Line of coast that low and far
Stretched its undulating bar
Wings aslant along the rim
Of the waves they stooped to skim
Rock and isle and glistening bay,
Fell the beautiful white day.

Said the Master to the youth
We have come in search of truth
Trying with uncertain key
Door by door of mystery
We are reaching through His laws
To the garment hem of Cause
Him the endless unbegun
The Unnamable the One
Light of all our light the Source
Life of life and Force of force
As with fingers of the blind
We are groping here to find
What the hieroglyphics mean
Of the Unseen in the seen
What the Thought which underlies
Nature's masking and disguise
What it is that hides beneath
Blight and bloom and birth and death
By past efforts unavailing
Doubt and error loss and failing
Of our weakness made aware
On the threshold of our task
Let us light and guidance ask,
Let us pause in silent prayer"

Then the Master in his place
Bowed his head a little space
And the leaves by soft airs stirred
Lapse of wave and cry of bird
Left the solemn hush unbroken
Of that wordless prayer unspoken
While its wish on earth unsaid
Rose to heaven interpreted
As in life's best hours we hear
By the spirit's finer ear
His low voice within us, thus
The All Father heareth us
And His holy ear we pain
With our noisy words and vain
Not for Him our violence
Storming at the gates of sense
His the primal language His
The eternal silences

Even the careless heart was moved
And the doubting gave assent,
With a gesture reverent
To the Master well beloved
As thin mists are glorified
By the light they cannot hide
All who gazed upon him saw
Through its veil of tender awe,
How his face was still uplit
By the old sweet look of it,
Hopeful trustful full of cheer
And the love that casts out fear
Who the secret may declare
Of that brief unuttered prayer?
Did the shade before him come
Of th' inevitable doom
Of the end of earth so near,
And Eternity's new year?

In the lap of sheltering seas
Rests the Isle of Perikese
But the lord of the domain
Comes not to his own again
Where the eyes that follow fail
On a vaster sea his sail
Drifts beyond our beck and hail
Other lips within its bound
Shall the laws of life expound
Other eyes from rock and shell
Read the world's old riddles well
But when breezes light and bland
Blow from summer's blossomed land,
When the air is glad with wings
And the blithe song sparrow sings,
Many an eye with his still face
Shall the living ones displace
Many an ear the word shall seek
He alone could fitly speak
And one name forevermore
Shall be uttered o'er and o'er
By the waves that kiss the shore
By the curlew's whistle sent
Down the cool, sea scented air
In all voices known to her
Nature own her worshipper
Half in triumph, half lament
Thither Love shall tearful turn
Friendship pause uncovered there,
And the wisest reverence learn
From the Master's silent prayer

DAISY'S MISSION.

Hell-Roaring Bar was neither a pretty nor euphonious name nor a reverential one but considering the character of its dwellers, it was an exceedingly fitting one for the locality that bore it. A six months' residence there convinced me so thoroughly of this fact that I could not conscientiously have changed a single letter of the name, even had I possessed the power to do so. Not that it savored of sulphurous odors, not that the roaring of its apparent patron saint were ever heard echoing among the canyons that encompassed it but for sinfulness, and wickedness, and riotous debauchery, it was peerless among all the mining camps I had ever visited in California.

I was sent there in the summer of 1853 by a San Francisco firm, to close out a business that was drifting into involuntary bankruptcy, and a long dusty ride found me there early in June of that year. A view of the camp from the mountain had not impressed me favorably with it, and a nearer acquaintance only confirmed that first impression, but, like a half reluctant bridegroom, I had resolved to take it "for better or worse," but but slight hope, however, that it would prove any better than it looked. "Hello, deacon! What do you want in Hell-Roarin'? Preachers don't stand much show in these diggings. You ain't wanted, better git!"

This was my greeting. I had just alighted from my mule tired and out of humor and felt half inclined to resent the brusque unmannerly salutation, but did not. It was not a consciousness of the truth that quieted me, for my appearance was certainly slightly clerical. True I had a perfect right to differ in opinion with the speaker for of a verity this was just the place where preachers were wanted, and just the place they should stay, but, making no professions of godliness, I held my tongue for a moment. I looked up—a brawny and powerful figure confronted me and I prudently held my temper. I replied blandly that I expected to remain there awhile, and suggested, with all meekness, that appearances were sometimes deceitful. Soon the Bar was agog with curiosity and a crowd gathered. And such a crowd! Great broad shouldered fellows, dirty and unshaved, deeply marked with chronic dissipation, whose every second word was an oath, striplings, whose tongues were volubly impudent and early trained to blasphemy in imitation of their elders gathered round while I unsaddled my mule in so awkward a manner as to excite derision. These people weighed everything, like their gold dust in their own scales, and, measured by their standard, I was regarded as a worthless imposter. I had store clothes on, and this fact alone was too much for the fixed conventionalism of the Bar. Buckskin and gray flannel assumed a dignity in early times among the "honest miners" more unyielding, more exacting than purple and fine linen. My boiled shirt was considered an infraction and therefore the Bar was affronted. "Deacon" was echoed from mouth to mouth. Bets were offered and freely taken that I was a psalm singer, a gambler, with a "dead thing" or waxed kerds, a lawyer, a doctor, anything but a horse jockey or a gentleman. Although nettled with the uncourteous reception I could not afford to fall out with my new neighbors. Beating my dusty hat against my knee with a well assumed swagger I turned quietly and asked if the Bar was dry. And the Bar was dry.

With a whoop the crowd adjourned to the saloon—a rickety, clap-board institution, furnished with a few stools and rough tables—and the Bar drank—first with myself, then with Joe Miles proprietor, then with the blunt individual who had first accosted me. Pressing through the crowd he held out his big rough hand and taking mine he led me forward with something of a triumphant air.

"Boys," he said, "I take it all back. This is my old skipper come out with him in '49. He ain't no preacher—he spends his money like a man, and don't whine. Any one that don't like him can call on Bill Thorp. That's me, boys! Let's take suthin."

Finding that things had taken an unexpected turn I immediately took advantage of the new situation. Thorp stood sponsor for me, and his emphatic assurance of my unpreacher-like character and proper disregard of the value of money put the Bar in good humor. So I explained my business and hoped to deserve well of the boys. And I won the friendship of these people—not by pandering to their tastes, or falling into their practices, but by minding my own business. While abstaining from rubbing against their prejudices, and scrupulously avoiding all interference with their pleasures I sympathized with them in all their little troubles and they respected me. The Bar by day did not seem to be a very bad or boisterous place in working hours it indulged in a kind of feverish rest. But it was at night that it shone in the full glory of its appropriate name. Then it was that the vampires that sucked the blood of honest labor came forth. Short card men, poker sharps, monte dealers, faro dealers and others of the fraternity started out to prey on the earnings of the day and the Bar ran riot. It was then that great strong fellows, who were wearing out their lives in a daily conflict with nature—tearing [illegible] the mountains and wrestling with the streams that others might wear the gold they won—would gather round the gambling tables to try their luck—and this thing called luck in the early days was a strange thing. [illegible] ing of the superstition that is found in the composition of every man in a greater or less degree, it was a phantom that haunted all [illegible]. Luck shamed reason and set at naught all mathematical certainties and [illegible]. It was the scapegoat for all [illegible]. It was the rock upon which [illegible] the golden castles of the hopeful [illegible] the shifting sand that carried away [illegible] the unfruitful [illegible] bitterness and disappointment [illegible] with fortune the Bar drank deep. It was dry by day; it was unquenchable by night. If luck was with the boys they drank as [illegible], if against them they drank still deeper and cursed it.

Altogether the Bar was a wild and abandoned place but attrition with these people taught me that there are solvents for even crystallized wickedness, that there is no cloud so dark as to be without a single streak of silver, no nature so rugged as to be impenetrable or beyond the reach of humanizing influence.

I had been domesticated in my new home about a month when a circumstance took place which seemed to change entirely the whole routine of Hell-Roaring. There was an arrival one morning, and the Bar throbbed with a new sensation—a quiet, unassuming lady—a Mrs Hampton—and her little daughter who sought rest and health in the mountains. Mrs Hampton was widowed but no one inquired into her history. She was welcomed as a new and strange element among so much wild reckless life that brought back memories of mother or sister or sweetheart far away and the Bar was pleased. The Bar christened the little daughter Daisy, and she was well named. From this day a marked change took place. Everyone desired to be well thought of by the newcomers, dress became an object of solicitude, drunken yells rending the quiet night were less frequent, spirits of evil seemed to be quelled, and the Bar was on its good behavior.

Little Daisy was everywhere as a ministering angel. If there was a sick bed in the camp Daisy was beside it with the little luxuries that the hand of woman only knows how to prepare. If a poor fellow was about to pass out his few last sands of life Daisy was there to wet the parched lips, to fill the poor neglected heart with hope, or to write the last message to loved ones over and beyond the Plains. Quiet and unobtrusive Daisy moved about in her ministrations. As she passed the saloon on her errands of mercy—her brown hair neatly folded over the pale forehead, her little basket of "goodies" on her arm, and a word and smile for every one—oaths half uttered would be choked back and rough and brutal jests shrunk unspoken as if ashamed in her presence. Even Oregon Sis—to whom a blush was a stranger—would hang her head silently when Daisy was near and her eyes would swell—perhaps, poor thing! with looking back to the old days among the apple blossoms when she, too, was pure and innocent—at least, I thought so. Somehow, the Bar was not so dry as formerly, and Joe Miles its ruling spirit, neglected his business and said he was tired of whisky-selling. He laid aside a six shooter, that, reports said, had served him only too well on more than one occasion, with the remark that the Bar was so quiet now it wan't no use to carry it. Joe was very particular now as to his personal appearance, dressing in the once despised "store clothes" and took to solitary rambling about the neighborhood. It was noticed if Daisy had occasion to pass along the dangerous trail through the canon, Joe was there with his strong hand to guide her. If she crossed the foot log over the turbulent stream, a steady arm was generally there to support her and more than once Joe was found in earnest conversation with her or reading the books with which she supplied him. Joe finally sold out the saloon and invested in a mining claim, which he was industriously working when I closed out my business and left the neighborhood.

I visited the Bar once again. Down the wild sierra, by the same tortuous and rugged trail that I had traversed nearly two years before, winding among the same lordly pines, rich in fragrance and standing like sentinels in the mountain passes, through the same groves of laurel and manzanito, glistening like waves of emerald and silver in the noonday sun, full-blossomed and wondrous in their beauty I approached the Bar. The place seemed changed. A few little white cottages peeped out from among the rich foliage, spots of ground were under cultivation and the hand of industry had been busy. The clap boarded saloon stood in the same old place just as I had first seen it, but its dilapidated condition showed that the institution was poorly patronized. A crowd had gathered near it—not such a crowd as in the olden time but a sober and quiet one. Every one looked anxious to tell me something but no one spoke till I found my friend Thorp. Taking my hand kindly he led me aside and for a moment was silent. "Well, Cap," he said, earnestly, "things is rough on the Bar; they ain't like they was when you left. She's gone—that's Daisy—and things ain't gone right for some o' the boys ever since. Yes, Cap, it is mighty rough."

I asked where Daisy had removed to.

"O no, Cap, you don't understand. The old woman she went back to Sacramento—broken-hearted they said, but Daisy, she's gone—called for, taken up among the stars, where she belonged. We miss Daisy, Cap. She got round some o' the boys, and she made them promise to knock off their grog. I hain't touched it since and I've saved a little. If she'd only staid, this thing wouldn't a happened. You see, Cap," he continued, "there's how it was. One o' the boys got badly hurt in his drift across the creek and one mornin Daisy started over to take him somethin, and it was a runnin' bank full and the log was slippery, and—well, we found Daisy a mile below with her brown hair all tangled among the willows, and her blue eyes kind o' pleadin' for help, and we brought her back—poor thing! There wan't a single drink taken on the bar that day, Cap; it seemed to go agin the boys. And Oregon Sis—her that we all thought so bad—she combed out the tangled hair and she knelt down and kissed Daisy, and went two miles a foot up the meadows and got flowers and put them in the little blue hands, and there's where we laid her, Cap—up there where you see them white pickets."

For some time the poor fellow could say no more, but sat with his face buried in his hands.

"And Joe?" I asked.

"Hush," he said, pointing to the saloon. "Joe's in there, [illegible]—shot night 'afore last in a row. Joe's a-passin in his checks sure! You see Joe went to th' bad. He sat by the [illegible] melancholy like, and wandered up and down the creek, and no one could do nothing with him, and he took to drink again, and the cussed temper came back, and he got to quarrelin with everybody. Night afore last he got in a row with Portugee John in a poker game; they both drawed, but John was too quick for him and Joe's bad hurt. The doctor says he ain't got no livin' show, and he'd like to see him, Cap."

We went together into the room where the wounded man lay. The broken windows were darkened with blankets, and on a pallet we found the poor fellow breathing heavily, and two of the boys fanning him tenderly as a mother. The ashy face and heavy drops of sweat that gathered on the forehead told the unspeakable agony of the sufferer and showed that ere long Joe's sun was nearly run out, and he beyond all human leechcraft. We had not meant to disturb him, but his ear, quickened by pain, caught our stealthy footsteps and turning round he recognized me.

"O Cap," he said, "you have come at last. I knew she would send some one to talk to me as she used to—to tell me about the blessed Land where Christ lives. [illegible] just made me understand a little when she left us. And pray for me, Cap, and ask Daisy to forgive me for letting the devil get the best of me and forgetting all that she taught me. She told me if I would only believe all she said that I would get to [illegible] was away beyond the stars. She's gone there, Cap, and I believe every word of it now. O can you pray? She taught me, but I most forgot how."

If ever I felt like praying it was then. If ever I felt able to ask forgiveness for a poor wayward shattered soul, trembling on the brink of the Unknown, about to be weighed in the balance of the Eternal it was at that moment. Soon there was silence unbroken save by a few smothered sobs among the bystanders but a quiet peaceful light rested on poor Joe's face. "Come close," he said in a low tone. "I feel better now. I know that I m[illegible] in to where she is and somehow I don't feel so much pain. Tell the boys to lay me [illegible] her there's room enough and [illegible] can find the way to where she is. And Cap," he whispered as he reached his hand under the pillow and drew out two pictures, "put these on my heart for they belong there. [illegible] old mother and for the [illegible] knew how to reach it. Write to her [illegible] it was, and that I did forget her I [illegible] When I'm gone [illegible]

Liverpool [illegible] San Francisco [illegible]

[illegible] the Nation [illegible] a leading commercial journal presents a mass of figures bearing on this subject. It takes the period of five years embraced within the years 1865-[illegible] with a statement of the volume of currency at the close of the war in 1865 as a point of comparison. At this date there was

Treasury currency 30th of June 1865 according to Treasurer's report [illegible]
Add 7-30 notes 1st of July 1865 [illegible]
National bank notes [illegible] July 1865 [illegible]
State bank notes July 1865 [illegible]

Total circulation in July 1865 [illegible]

In 1868 when the currency was reduced to its peace standard it stood as follows

Treasury currency according to Treasurer Spinner June 30 1868 [illegible]
Add 7-30 notes (Jan 1 1868) [illegible]
Three per cent certificates June 30 1868 [illegible]
National bank notes July 1 1868 [illegible]
State bank notes July 1 1868 [illegible]

Total circulation in July 1868 [illegible]

We contrast with this the volume of currency as it stood in September last

Treasury currency 30th Sept 1873 [illegible]
Seven-eighty notes 30th Sept 1873 [illegible]
National bank notes [illegible]

Total circulation 30th Sept 1873 [illegible]

The reduction in the volume of currency therefore from 1865 to 1873 was [illegible] and from 1868 to 1873 it was [illegible] If to the former of these is added the increased reserve required, the reduction would be increased by the sum of [illegible]. As against this reduction the Nation presents in detail a mass of figures for which we have not space showing the increase of various items of wealth the use or management of which require an increased amount of currency. We summarize as follows, the period embraced being that from 1868 to 1873:

	Per cent
Increase foreign imports for consumption	[illegible]
Increase of marketable industrial products	[illegible]
Increase of cost of travel and transportation by railroads	[illegible]
Increase of cost of construction of railroads	[illegible]
Increase of wealth of the United States	[illegible]
Increase of wages demanded in the South	100 000 000—100

Excited Discussion on the Modoc War Claims—Defeat of the Bill.

The bill for ascertaining losses sustained by citizens of Southern Oregon and Northern California by Indian depredations in 1872 and 1873 [illegible] quite an excited discussion [illegible] defended the [illegible] of Captain Jack and the Modocs and stated [illegible] that when Captain Jack was holding his conference with Captain Jack the military lines were being closed around the Modocs. The bill was opposed [illegible] as establishing a dangerous precedent—that the Government was responsible for the reimbursement of all damages by wars. Garfield said it would open sluices from the Treasury [illegible] claims from Ohio and Indiana, arising out of Morgan's raid, from Pennsylvania arising out of the [illegible] invasion and there would not be a cent left in the Treasury. Finally on motion of Garfield the enacting clause was stricken from the bill in Committee of the Whole by a vote of [illegible] and the committee therefore rose and reported, and the House agreed [illegible] was concurred in, yeas [illegible] 85.
